ADVENTURE

People should pay attention to weather conditions before they do some extreme sports. For example, highlining is a good choice to do on a sunny day. Otherwise, people may lose their lives because wind can be a big danger for them. If people are interested in winter sports, they should wait for snowy days. As everybody knows, people just can do heli-skiing only on these days. However, snowy weather is not suitable to do water sports such as kayaking, rafting and scuba diving. People should try these sports when the weather is cool and dry.
