(Audio 1.4) The headmaster of a high school is talking to a school cleaner. Listen to the conversation and complete the table below.

Cleaner: Good morning, sir.

Headmaster: Good morning, Henry. What's up?

Cleaner: I want to clean the classrooms, sir. Which classrooms are empty until the lunch break?

Headmaster: Let me have a look at the timetable, Henry.

Class 9B are in the gym now as they have PE lessons. They're practising basketball.

Class 9E are in the science lab. They're studying physics. I talked to their teacher, Mr Davis during the break time. He's doing an experiment with the students now.

Cleaner: Yes, sir. Classes 9B and 9E.

Headmaster: That's right, Henry.

And Class 10A have music lessons and they're in the music room. They're practising for the school concert.

Class 10C have art lessons so they're in the art room.

Cleaner: OK, sir. Classes 10A and 10C.

Headmaster: Yes.

And Class 11D are in the computer lab as they have ICT lessons. They're learning to develop a web page.

Finally, Class 11F are in the library. They're studying English literature there. They're doing research on famous English poets.

Cleaner: All right, sir. Classes 11D and 11F.

Headmaster: So six classrooms are empty, Henry. You can clean them.

Cleaner: Yes, sir. I'll start at once. Thank you, sir.

Headmaster: Don't mention it, Henry.

The text is an extract from .....

- a. a magazine article
- b. a letter
- c. a story

The academic year in England has three terms in most schools. The first one usually starts in September and finishes in December. Pupils have a one-week holiday at the end of October and a two-week holiday at the end of December (Christmas holiday). The second term starts at the beginning of January and ends in March. There's a one-week holiday in February and a two-week holiday at the end of March (Easter holiday). The third term begins in April. Pupils have a one-week holiday at the end of May. Then schools start again in June. After that, it's time for the summer holiday. It's from the middle of July to the end of August. It lasts six weeks.

During the summer holiday, English teenagers generally do the same as the ones in other countries. For example, they like watching telly and listening to music. They spend most of their time texting their friends or chatting with them on their mobile phones. They love playing video games. They usually surf the Net. They sometimes read magazines. They often go swimming. They also enjoy going to the cinema with their friends. They have a good time together.
